I think it is important to remember that most Dental Therapists working for the DHB earn between $25 and $35 an hour and that if additional expectations are being placed on them to provide their own Professional Development this should not be financially onerous. Their ability to obtain leave during the school term can also prove difficult therefore limiting their ability to attend conferences, lectures etc away from their location. If there is additional expectations re medical checks etc these need to be covered by the employer for the reason I have previously given.
