

Hi,

I strongly oppose the change in fees, how is it possible that as a dental therapist (and likely the lowest paid group of all practitioners) we are expected to pay the highest fees of all the practitioner groups.

Is there any way that the APC fees can reflect this more fairly? It seems ridiculous that because we are a smaller group we are charged more as our group is only going to be getting smaller over the coming years. Perhaps if the dental council wants to charge such astronomical fees they need to consider providing more training or other incentives so that we are not made to feel so isolated. Unfortunately it is leading me to feel that as a practitioner group we are basically being phased out.

Come on guys surely you can see this isn't right!

Thanks,

Hayley James
