While for the most part I support the document, I am concerned at the use of plastic aprons it what appears to be every clinical interaction. Perhaps some clarification is required here. My concern is that within our organisation we may see over 100 patients per day and this would create a large volume of non-recyclable waste. Can we have some clarity whether 1. it is necessary to use plastic aprons for consultations/non-AGP's or not? 2. If so, would hard wearing plastics that can be surface disinfected with appropriate surface disinfectants and reused be appropriate?
